

VELDIS, S.A.

QUALITY POLICY AND ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT

REV.: 4

The company VELDIS, S.A. is dedicated since 1984 to the import, distribution and commercialization of food products and beverages on a national level; since its inception, quality and respect for the environment have always been one of their top priorities, both in the selection of their products, as in the service offered, not only as a result of the demand from their customers, but as a mark of its own identity.

It is therefore that, along with the needs of the market, VELDIS has a quality system and environmental management certified according to the standards UNE EN ISO 9001 and UNE EN ISO 14001.

The Management of VELDIS establishes as a priority to provide services that meet the needs of clients, planning our activities so as to ensure the prevention of pollution. VELDIS assumes the ultimate responsibility for maintaining a system of quality management and environmental management that will make possible the achievement of that goal. All of these actions allow us to a continuous improvement of our daily work directly impacting our customers and interested parties.

For this purpose, the following principles are taken into account:

- Comply and enforce the legal, regulatory requirements and other requirements that apply to our activities, either internal or expressed by our customers.
- Apply another type of requirements that exceed the level of quality and respect for the environment of our products and services, based on the principle of continuous improvement to achieve the improvement of the environmental performance.
- Make the effort required to identify, characterize and minimize the environmental impact derived from the activities of VELDIS.
- Raise awareness, inform and train the staff of the company on the aspects related to the quality of our products and environmental aspects resulting from our activities and on quality management and environmental management.

- Promote internal and external communication with criteria of transparency, and inform suppliers and subcontractors of the measures taken to protect the environment as well as invite them to participate in our environmental management.
- Sustainably use natural resources and reducing the consumption of raw materials, as well as the use of more environmentally friendly products, as far as possible.
- Minimize the generation of waste and manage it trying to recover and recycle instead of eliminate, whenever possible.

Maintaining this level of quality and respect for the environment involves the commitment and collaboration of all the people who work in VELDIS, so that the quality of our products and services, as well as our environmental performance, is the reason of our customers purchasing.

The Management is committed to periodically review and update this policy and will serve as a reference for the establishment and revision of quality and environmental objectives and goals.
